ANOTHER MURDER IN THE RICE PLOT?

C. J. Carrolson Believes That His Mother Was a Victim of the Conspiracy.

HER DEATH WAS MYSTERIOUS.

Went to New York to Establish Relationship With Rice, and Son Soon Was Notified of Her Death.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

New York, April 8.-To prove that he i the grandson and heir of William Marsh Rice, the dead millionaire, for whose murder Lawyer Albert T. Patrick is under sen tence of death at Sing Sing, Carl J. Carrol son of Muncie, Ind., is in this city.

A romantic story is told by the young man, and strangest of all is the fact that his mother, who came here during the lifetime of William Marsh Rice to establish her claim as a daughter-in-law, met death in a mysterious manner.

Young Carrolson is confident that her leath was encompassed by those who were in the conspiracy to get away with old man Rice's millions.

"I will have no difficulty in establishing my claims as a grandson of William Marsh Rice," said Carrolson to-day. "My father was John J. Rice, a son of William Marsh Rice. My mother was a Miss Carrolson. and she met my father when the Rice were making their home in New Jersey. after the marriage father and grandfather quarreled, and young John Rice went West. He and my mother spent several years in Cincinnati, where I was born. Later they moved to Muncle, Ind. which has since been my home. After father's death my mother corresponded with William Marsh Rice for a long time, and he frequently helped her. He left the Bast for awhile and returned to Texas. At that time their correspondence broke off.

She often spoke to me of my grandfather, and when I grew up I urged her to learn more about him. In response to my entreaties she started for New York in April, 1800. I had one letter from her saying she had arrived safely and was confident of the success of her mission. A few days later, from a source unknown to me, and which has been to me an unsolvable mystery. I was notified of her death and told to come and get her body. "It had taken nearly all our means to provide for her trip, but I raised enough to come to New York and secured the body. I felt certain that my mother's death was the result of a foul plot, but the police authorities told me this was no place to parley over a dead woman. When I took the body home I asked the local authorities to investigate the case, but they took no action. When I heard of William Marsa Rice having been murdered, I was more than ever convinced that my mother had been poisoned. Some one had discovered the cause of her visit and had put her out of the way."

DAWES AND MASON CAPTURED MARION.

Yates Faction Routed in the County Convention by the Opposition Leaders.

W. F. BUNDY FOR LEGISLATURE.

Editor Utterback and Others Tried Hard to Secure Instructions for Hopkins and Met With Jeers.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL Salem, Ill., April 8.-The Dawes-Mason ombination was triumphant in the Marion county Republican Convention to-day. The Yates-Hopkins leaders made a feeble protest as the opposition train crushed the life out of their hopes, but the protests were in vain. There was a test roll call on a motion to make the temporary organization permanent, and it only served to show the infantile weakness of the Yates-Hopkins-Lorimer strength. The anti-Yates side won by a vote of 105 to 29. The Omega delega-tion didn't vote—didn't reach Salem, as a matter of fact. They got tangled in the tall timber in the northeastern part of the county. Editor Utterback of the Salem Resublican, the Hopkins leader in the county, said the vote showed the relative strength of the two factions in the convention.

William F. Bundy received instruction for the Legislature by unanimous vote and was authorized to name the delegates to the Senatorial Convention. Ben Schwartz of Salem, the Hopkins candidate, put up a weak bluff and carried his own township and one other. He withdraw this morning. A farmer (and a good man) by the name of Foraker, a cousin of the famous Obloan, also ran in his home township. Bundy was the overwhelming choice of the county. He has a decided learning toward Dawes and Mason, but is not pronounced for any candidate. He is opposed to the Yates faction in any event, and the Governor strained every nerve to defeat him. Bundy is an illustration of the political axiom that it won't do to crowd a man to the wall. A month ago he said he didn't want to return to the Legislature, and the Yates dogs set up a tremendous barking, declaring Bundy had quit because he couldn't win. This aroused the fighting blood in Bundy and he began an open fight, winning in a walk.

Pay-Roll Brigade on Duty. also ran in his home township. Bundy was

Pay-Roll Brigade on Duty.

The Governor's pay-roll brigade has been on duty here for several weeks in behalf of Schwartz. The list includes Doctor Kell of the Kankakee Hospital, Doctor Telford of the Asylum for the Criminal Insane, Tom Uutterback, Assistant State Librarian; John Dunlop, Mine Inspector; Walter Mathis of the State Board of Arbitration; Ben Schwarts of the State Board of Pharmacy; Colonel Pittenger of the military staft, and George Jones, who was the original Yates rooter here and who is on the waiting list for the job that was promised, but never delivered. He has been watching the mails and haunting the telegraph office for over a year. General James S. Martin of this city, who joined the Salem delegation of knockers on Bundy, could not add an ounce to the Governor's side by his oratory. He spoke in behalf of the Yates crowd, although supposed to belong to the anti-organization.

L. M. Noleman was chairman and D. E.

crowd, although supposed to beiong to the anti-organization.

L. M. Noleman was chairman, and D. E. Pease, J. C. Utterback and Thomas L. Joy, secretaries of the convention, all of them being drafted into service against their will. A motion to make the temporary organization permanent aroused the pugnacity of Fred Goodnow and George Jones of the Hopkins side. They demanded a roll call and were buried beneath an avalanche of negative votes—106 to 23.

Attorney Dew offered a batch of resolu-ions, including McKinley and Roosevelt dorsements and commendations, and the indorsements and commendations, and the following:

"We indorse the able records of Shelby M. Cullom and William E. Mason in the

M. Cullom and William E. Mason in the United States Senate and commend them for the wise measures they have favored and the good care they have taken of the interests of the people of Illinois. We indorse the able and clean State administration of affairs by Governor Yates. We indorse and approve the record in the last General Assembly of William F. Bundy, and indorse his candidacy for that position this year."

General Assembly of William F. Bundy, and indorse his candidacy for that position this year."

Editor Utterback was on his feet in an instant and presented the following amendment: "That the delegates selected to the State and Senatorial conventions are hereby instructed to use all honorable means to secure the election of Honorable Albert J. Hopkins to the United States Senate."

Apparently this suited only Mr. Utterback, for nobody seconded it, until Ben Schwartz was appealed to for assistance. When Rollin Smith moved to insert the name of Mason in place of Hopkins there was a roar of cheers and applause. But Chairman Noleman decided both were out of order at that time in spite of the wrathful demands of Utterback, Goodnow, Smith, Jones and the venerable Martin. The resolutions were adopted, but the disturbing elements continued to growl like bears with sore paws. They opposed everything that came up, and were knocked down every time.

The committee to select delegates to the State convention reported the following: C. F. Linder, Doctor W. E. Richardson, C. R. Bundy, Charles McMackin, T. B. Walker, Adam Hatmaker, John F. Donovan and Mayor Rohl of Centralia.

Mayor Rohl of Centralia.

Bundy Delegation.

It is a Bundy Delegation from stem to stern and a burglar's jimmy from the Governor's office couldn't pry an opening for a Yates proposition. McMackin, four years ago was a candidate for the Legislature, and it is alleged that Ben Schwartz bunkoed him out of the Marion County indorsement. Schwartz was nominated along with Tommy Williams of Clay County, and the friends of John Tanner promptly laid Schwartz on the shelf by the plumping method so well understood in this section of Egypt. Schwartz was in command of the Yates-Hopkins forces on the floor today, and made a mess of it, exhibiting the weakness of his faction to the derision of their enemies. Statesman Jim Telford also was in evidence. His boy is a physician in a Yates institution. But there was no fight of consequence left in Schwartz or Telford after the first roll call.

After the list of Congressional delegates had been accepted, Utterback and Smith and Goodnow and the rest of the kindergarden class, who were trying to get instructions for United States Senator through the convention, renewed their attempt. They hammered away like carpenters shingling a roof, but in the end accomplished nothing. There were no instructions for United States Senator.

Many Statesmen Present. Bundy Delegation.

Many Statesmen Present.

There was a cloud of statesmen present from other parts of the State. John J. Brown of Vandalis and Al Campbell of Effingham, came to lend their influence to rivet instructions of some kind on the State delegation and on Bundy. Ed Curits and Secretary Treasurer Miller of Kankakee, traveled all the way down here to get instructions for Len Small for State Treasurer. W. R. Kimzey wanted instructions for Superintendent of Schools, and so did Mrs. Hester M. Smith. Representative Trautman of East St. Louis, was after instructions for Begole for Treasurer and Colonel R. Smith of Flora was a plain citizen and onlooker. All the visitors were disappointed. But Begole will probably get the Marion delegation for Treasurer.

When the convention adjourned the delegates to the State Convention met in the Grand Jury room and unanimonusly adopted a resolution to vote on sill questions as a unit and to vote against any resolution instructing or indorsing a candidate for United States Senator. ployed an attorney to look after his interests as surety on the bond. "Are you secured in any way to relieve you of the payment of the bond?" asked the court. "No. str." "Then I understand you are absolutely unprotected, and if you are forced to pay this bond it will represent a clear loss of $20,000 to you?" asked the court. "Yes sir, unless I can recover on a suit against Kratz's real estate." Eyermann further stated that whe Kratz's bond was increased Kratz had offered to secure him against possible loss by transferring to him real estate or by sim flar obligations, but that Attorney Fauntleroy had advised that this was unneces

Attorney Fauntleroy, questioned as to this, stated that on March 21, in his office Kratz had suggested the advisability of in demnifying Eyermann, as the bond was a was no necessity for such a transaction, a the bondsman would have ample recours against Kratz's real estate in the event of anything transpiring to forfeit the bond. JUDGE HARVEY TOLD

OF THE ARRANGEMENT. Attorney Thomas B. Harvey was then in terrogated as to his knowledge of any arrangement to indemnify Eyermann in case of a forfeiture. Mr. Harvey replied that he did not know that the court had a right to ask such a question, but that he would say that on Monday afternoon, after Kratz's bond had been forfeited, he had met an attorney on the street who told him hat he was not surprised to hear that Kratz had tumped his bond.

"I gathered from his conversation," said Mr. Harvey, "that Kratz's bondsman had been secured against loss." "Who is that lawyer?" asked the court. "I do not feel at liberty to tell his name." sald Mr. Harvey. "I regard his communi cation as confidential, and to reveal his name would be a violation of the ethics of the profession. "It is your duty," replied the Judge, "to aid this court by every means in your power to reach the truth in this matter. As an officer of this court you are under an obligation to reveal the name of your informant.

"It is not that I desire to conceal any information from the court," replied Mr. Harvey. "I presume that the lawyer was acting as the attorney for either Mr. Kratz or Mr. Eyermann in the indemnity negotia ons, and I would be violating a confidence if I revealed his name." You are under obligation as an officer of this court to assist the court in learning all the circumstances connected with this matter." observed Judge Ryan. "If the court will permit me," said Mr. Harvey, "to see this lawyer and have him release me from the obligation of confidence imposed on me, I will reveal his name." "I will allow you until 2 o'clock to consider whether you will tell his name," re-plied Judge Ryan.
